THEME: LEVERAGING FOOD ENVIRONMENT
RESEARCH NETWORK (FERN) TO TRANSFORM AFRICA'S FOOD SYSTEMS

WEDNESDAYS 3RD, 10TH, 17TH NOVEMBER, 2021
AN ONLINE MEETING

PROGRAMME

BROCHURE
NOVEMBER 2021

BACKGROUND

The impact of the multiple pandemics of malnutrition (including undernutrition, and obesity), climate change, and currently, COVID-19 - on our food environments and the food systems in general is immense. These challenges require urgent attention. Addressing the challenges, malnutrition in all its forms, will require improvement in food environments and a food system that works for all. In Africa, improving food environments is an urgent priority. Rapid urbanization, coupled with changes in food environments, has impacted the burden of obesity and diet-related NCDs in the region. Dietary habits of people in Africa are shifting towards highly processed foods that are high in fat, sugar and salt. Africa needs policies and practice guidance designed to create supportive food environments for healthy food choices. To be successful, food systems stakeholders led by governments require inputs – including data, evidence, nudging.

Against this background, the MEALS4NCDs Project and partners (INFORMAS, REPSAO, DFC, Others) is convening the second Africa Food Environment Research Network Meeting (FERN2021). The MEALS4NCDs project is focused on measuring and supporting public sector actions that create healthy food marketing and food provisioning environments for children and adolescents in Ghana, with the aim to prevent obesity nutrition-related NCDs. The FERN initiative, birthed by the MEALS4NCDs Project is a regional capacity-building, and knowledge-sharing network that encourages research collaborations, implementation of innovative food environment research, and practices that facilitate creation of healthier food environments in Africa. The 1st FERN meeting was held online from 3rd to 5th November 2020, with about 200 participants from 56 countries in attendance. The meeting provided a platform to connect researchers working on African food environment, identified research priorities for improving food environment in Africa and provided capacity building workshops for participants.

The 2nd FERN meeting will build on the progress made from the first meeting, and leverage research, practice, and policy-making networks to contribute to the transformation of Africa's food environments and food systems as a whole. The event is being held jointly with the International Network for Food and Obesity/Non-communicable Diseases Research, Monitoring and Action Support (INFORMAS)'s e-symposium series – as per the joint call for abstracts below.

INFORMAS

INFORMAS (International Network for Food and Obesity / Non-communicable Diseases (NCDs) Research, Monitoring and Action Support) is a global network of public-interest organisations and researchers that aims to monitor, benchmark and support public and private sector actions to increase healthy food environments and reduce obesity and NCDs and their related inequalities. There are currently more than 60 countries worldwide participating in INFORMAS. For more information, kindly visit <https://www.informas.org/>

UNESCO Chair in World Food Systems

The Unesco Chair in World Food Systems aims to bridge the gap between food science disciplines and supporting different stakeholders to deliver more sustainable food systems. The Chair currently organizes science-society interactions through three types of activities : training; action research; opening doors to and disseminating knowledge. More information on : <https://www.chaireunesco-adm.com/?lang=en>

REPSAO

REPSAO "Réseau de Recherche sur les Politiques et les Systèmes Alimentaires en Afrique de l'Ouest" has been implemented in 2019. REPSAO is a platform of stakeholders including researchers, public policy makers and community actors that aims to develop research-action on healthy food environments policy and food system and to stimulate a regional dynamic around this topic in West Africa. The network has defined an agenda of priority research topics and actions that will guide policy-making decision and development of strategic plans in nutrition, health and environmental sustainability.

DFC Program

The Drivers of Food Choice (DFC) generates, synthesizes, and disseminates knowledge to provide a deep understanding of the drivers of food choice among the poor in South Asia and Sub-Saharan Africa. The DFC Program which is funded by the UK Government's Foreign, Commonwealth, and Development Office and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, and managed by the University of South Carolina, Arnold School of Public Health. <https://driversoffoodchoice.org/>

Food Prices for Nutrition

Food Prices for Nutrition is a project at Tufts University, implemented with the World Bank and IFPRI, to support computation of diet cost and affordability metrics such as those used in UN system SOFI reports and other outlets like <https://ourworldindata.org/food-prices> . Details at: <https://sites.tufts.edu/foodpricesfornutrition>.

CDIA

The Chronic Disease Initiative for Africa (CDIA) is a network of multidisciplinary researchers from the University of Cape Town, Stellenbosch University, University of the Western Cape, and the South African Medical Research Council, and policymakers from local and national Departments of Health. The Centre serves as a regional hub for developing and evaluating models of chronic disease care and prevention. For more information, kindly visit <http://www.cdia.uct.ac.za/>

The Agriculture, Nutrition and Health (ANH) Academy is a global community of interdisciplinary researchers, practitioners, and policymakers working on agriculture and food systems for improved nutrition and health, with over 5000 members from 145 countries, 63% of whom are based in Africa or Asia.

The Academy is a platform for sharing research and evidence, with a focus on supporting peer-to-peer capacity strengthening and fostering collaboration across diverse disciplines, geographies, seniorities and sectors. As a workstream of the IMMANA programme it also shares methods and metrics developed through IMMANA grants and fellowships.

Membership of the ANH Academy is free of charge and open to all. What we do: Annual ANH Academy Week, where hundreds of Academy members meet for learning labs and an interdisciplinary research conference.

Working groups to accelerate research by sharing experience and synthesising disparate research methods and metrics. Skills-based trainings via face-to-face gatherings and webinars. Synthesis Centre for Agriculture and Nutrition Research (SCANR).

An online collaborative platform. For more information, kindly go here <https://www.anh-academy.org/>

The African Population and Health Research Center (APHRC)

The African Population and Health Research Center (APHRC) is a leading Africa-based, African-led, international research institution headquartered in Nairobi, Kenya, with a regional office in Dakar, Senegal. Our researchers are contributing to the body of evidence about critical issues in population health and wellbeing, impeding Africa's development to provide strong direction and recommendations to policy- and decision-makers at all levels. APHRC also aims to enhance the use of the evidence generated by decision-makers for policy and programming at the local, national and regional level.

The RECAP project by APHRC aims to identify context-relevant priority actions that promote a healthy food environment as a strategy to enhance healthy dietary patterns/practices and prevent nutrition-related non-communicable diseases (NR-NCDs) in Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania. The project has four objectives: i. To assess gaps, barriers and facilitators to developing and implementing public food policies and government actions, ii. To assess the frequency and nature of unhealthy food and beverage marketing to children, the power of promotions on television, in stores, and in and around schools, iii. To estimate the cost of inaction for selected NR-NCD policies, and iv. To assess the legal and administrative feasibility of adopting and implementing context-specific NR-NCD interventions.
